ADAM & EVE'S SKELETONS FOUND — IN COLORADO!

Amazing proof Book of Genesis is true!

It was a tough winter back in 1777. The Revolutionary War was raging, and starving colonial troops needed supplies! Jacob DeHaven saved the day — and our country — when he loaned a down-and-out American general $450,000! Now a relative wants the money BACK — with interest!

GEORGE WASHINGTON OWES ME $100 BILLION!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

Ada May Brown wants Uncle Sam to pay back the money George Washington borrowed from one of her ancestors to help his army survive the cold winter at Valley Forge — a 214-year-old debt that, with interest, now amounts to $100 billion!

Yes, Virginia. That's $100 BILLION!

But if that's too high a price for the U.S. to pay for unflinching patriotism, 84-year-old Ada May says she and her kin feel an official "Thanks for the help" would do just nicely. History books are filled with accounts of the horror the heroic rag-tag Continental Army endured at Valley Forge in the bitter winter of 1777-78.

But nothing was recorded of the vital role Jacob DeHaven played that made it possible for Gen. Washington to achieve the ultimate victory.

Seems Ada May's great-great-great-great-great-great-great uncle (plus or minus a "great" or two) loaned Washington $50,000 in gold and a whopping $400,000 worth of supplies.

Now, 214 years later, DeHaven's descendant — among them one Ada May Brown of Tabernacle, N.J. — is asking the government to repay the loan plus interest. Or, at the very least, give the old boy credit for patriotism above and beyond the call of duty.

The U.S. Supreme Court doesn't agree.

In a recent decision, the high court refused to hear their suit, saying the statute of limitations had long ago expired.

It had been filed 121 years too late, the court explained.

It wasn't Ada May's first taste of judicial defeat. The suit lost in U.S. Claims Court in 1990 and again in the U.S. Court of Appeals in 1991.

But DeHaven's kin argue that the Constitution guarantees repayment of the loan regardless of the dispute over when it was filed.

And they say Congress had, at first, promised to repay [illegible] then later agreed to pay interest on the loan until it could be paid back.

The debt is still owed, [illegible] ment to acknowledge it owes the money and to recognize Jacob's good works," Ada May said. "It's the least they can

A tough act to swallow: Professional upchucker gets paid big bucks to barf!

THE REGURGITATOR!

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Steel-tummied Stevie Starr is a showbiz superstar who's heaved his way to the top the hard way — by throwing up on stages around the world!

Amazing Stevie has traveled from Boston to Bangkok bolting down everything from bumblebees to billiard balls to light bulbs — and barfing them right back up again.

The master regurgitator can devour dozens of eggs and bring 'em up in any order you choose. He can bolt down a bowl of sugar, chase it with a giant glass of water then burp up the sugar — bone dry.

"It's not a trick, it's just something I can do that other people can't," show-stopping Stevie told a reporter.

"While back I did 27 shows in San Francisco and there were a couple of ladies who came to all 27 performances trying to catch me at something. But they never did, you know — because there's nothing to catch. Really, it's all a matter of control."

Astonishing Stevie, 35, discovered his aptitude for upchucking while growing up in a boys' home in Glasgow, Scotland, two decades ago.

"We were supposed to turn over our allowance so they could save it for us, but I learned if I swallowed mine they couldn't get at it," the barfin' bachelor recalled.

"They'd send me to my room for refusing to give them the money and I'd just go in and bring it up again. I never thought too much about how I was able to do it, because it seemed perfectly natural at the time."

But sick Stevie didn't decide to make losing his lunch his life's work till 10 years ago when a friend entered him in a talent contest and he vomited his way to victory. An agent in the audience was so impressed with the scrappy Scotsman's retching routine that he got him to work, and Stevie's been regurgitating for greenbacks ever since.

The sultan of upchuck can gulp down live fish and bring 'em back in any order the crowd chooses. He can swallow a Rubik's Cube, flip the sides around down inside his gullet, then bring it up again like magic.

He can swallow a locked padlock, eat the key, then burp them both up again — with the padlock wide open.

And wherever he appears — from the Brisbane Palladium to Sally's in Vegas — crowd pleasing Stevie leaves them screaming for more. "I never dreamed being a professional regurgitator could be this much fun, but believe me, I'm having a ball," said the show-'em-up showman.

Shawbiz superstar gulps down all kinds of junk — and then throws it up again!

SKELETONS OF ADAM AND EVE FOUND IN COLORADO!

By DAVID W. ROSS
Correspondent

A leading archaeologist claims to have found the skeletal remains of Adam and Eve on a mountainside south of Denver in one of the greatest scientific discoveries ever!

And while Dr. Jonathan Richard is the first to admit that wild claims and theories could ruin his career, he insists that the burial site of the couple is none other than the Garden of Eden — where the first and most compelling story in the Bible occurred.

"This discovery will shake the institutions of science and religion to their very foundations and eventually make believers of us all," the Los Angeles-based expert told reporters.

"So how do I know that the skeletons belonged to Adam and Eve?

"For one thing, testing shows the bones to be approximately 980,000 years old but the shape and structure of the skulls is modern in every respect. This suggests that the couple bypassed the evolutionary process and sprang to life in a fully evolved, modern form, which is exactly what the Bible says occurred.

"Even more compelling, the male skeleton is missing a rib that we found grafted to the female's spine.

"If you have read the story of creation that appears in the Book of Genesis, you'll recall that God created Adam from clay and then made Eve from one of Adam's ribs. As far as the Bible, which led him to conclude that the Garden of Eden was located some 40 miles south of Denver in the Rocky Mountains instead of in the Middle East.

He went on to say that the sudden and mysterious appearance of the couple in the Rocky Mountains 980,000 years ago predates the arrival of Indians in North America by 973,000 years.

He also noted that it coincides with the time slot many theologians give for the appearance of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.

"The skeletons alone are powerful proof but there's even more evidence to consider," said the expert, who began his search for Eden in 1968 and finally struck pay dirt in March of this year.

"Less than 75 feet from the couple's grave I found the petrified fragments of an apple tree, which, according to biblical accounts, was the central feature in the Garden of Eden before Adam and Eve were banished by God.

"This particular variety of tree cannot be found anywhere in the region today," he said, adding: "This is no coincidence. This is proof that I have found the true Garden of Eden and the mother and father of us all."

Dr. Richard has no explanation for the side-by-side positioning of the couple in a common grave but he speculated that they perished within minutes of one another during a natural disaster such as an earthquake or a landslide.

He also refused to pinpoint the exact location of the site to avoid a media circus, although he promised to provide other scientists with maps once his excavations and studies are complete.

He expects those tasks to take several years.

"This is much too important a discovery to risk anything," said the archaeologist. "I can't chance anything going wrong."

DR. RICHARD unearthed the skeletal remains of Adam and Eve 40 miles south of Denver.

Archaeologist's discovery 40 miles south of Denver proves Genesis story is TRUE!

CLASSICAL engraving shows Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden — which a noted archaeologist says was located in Colorado.

I'm concerned, the couple we found at our dig match that description to the letter.

"I never considered myself to be a religious man," he added.

"But all that changed when I found these skeletons. Now I'm being forced to rethink the spiritual aspects of my life and look much more closely at what the Bible has to say about the origins of the universe and mankind."

Dr. Richard's report set off a controversy among theologians, historians and other archaeologists, one of whom accused him of "leaping to conclusions that can't possibly be substantiated at this stage of research."

The expert himself bristled at the suggestion that his report was in any way premature.

He cited a 14-year study of ancient texts, including

'This should make believers of us all'

"TESTING shows the bones to be approximately 300,000 years old," says Dr. Jonathan Richard, left. "And the male skeleton's missing rib is granted to the female's spine, just as described

Determine the sex of your baby — by what you eat!

By SUSAN JIMISON
staff writer

You can determine the sex of your baby just by eating the right foods, a fascinating new study shows.

A steady diet of fruits and veggies will give you a good chance of producing a bouncing baby boy, according to research done by doctors at Erasmus Hospital in Brussels, Belgium.

And a diet rich in dairy products gives you a better-than-average chance at having a girl.

"Women who followed their diets carefully had a four out of five chance at having a baby of the sex they wanted," said the obstetrician who headed up the 1991 study. "That's an astonishing success rate."

The experts say they devised their study after learning that acid levels in a woman's diet could influence the survival of sperm that infect sex during fertilization.

To test the hypothesis, they enrolled a number of young women in a research project in which their diets were carefully controlled over a number of months prior to conception.

During this time, women who wanted boys were fed a menu of fruits and vegetables, with special emphasis on the consumption of potatoes, carrots and bananas. In addition, these gals also boosted their salt intake for the 18 weeks prior to conception.

Women who wanted girls limited the amount of fruit and vegetables they ate in the same period preceding conception. Instead, they concentrated on consuming at least two glass of milk a day and plenty of cheese and yogurt as well.

An astonishing 80 percent of the women in the study who became pregnant wound up with a baby of the sex they desired, the researchers say.

"And there's especially good news for women who want to have boys," the obstetrician said.

"We found that the diet they must follow is much easier to stick to than the diet followed by women who opted for girls."

MOST AMAZING PHOTO EVER OF A UFO

By JIM STERN
Correspondent

A UFO hovered over Egypt's Great Pyramid for three mind-blowing minutes, apparently searching for a relic or beacon that was planted when the structure was built 5,000 years ago — in 2600 B.C.

That's the claim of French and Danish archaeologists who photographed the starship as it scanned the pyramid with a laser on January 12.

The researchers also watched the spacecraft retrieve a small black box from the base of the pyramid before it disappeared.

"The UFO came for that black box," Dr. Jacques Claire, the French archaeologist, told newsmen in Cairo. "Even stranger, the alien pilot and crew didn't seem to care who saw the starship. It hovered over us for three minutes, scanning the pyramid and ground with a blue laser.

"The UFO zeroed in on the north face of the structure and pulled a small black box from the sand at the base up into the hold of the ship. Before it disappeared we got a photograph. It's the most dramatic picture of a UFO ever."

UFO experts around the world tended to agree. Computer studies indicated that the photo was not a composite or hoax, and researchers flatly called it proof that space aliens do exist — and are interested in the planet Earth. Jorge Hering, Dr. Claire's Danish colleague, went even farther than that.

He believes the UFO may have been manned by the descendants of space aliens who helped design and build the pyramid in 2600 B.C.

"There is no explanation," said the expert. "That black box had to be a beacon that led them to the pyramid or a relic left by their ancestors."

Scientists have long believed that space aliens had something to do with the design and construction of the pyramids in ancient times.

Egyptian officials conceded that a UFO was picked up on a radar on the evening of January 12 but refused to discuss the incident pending the completion of an investigation.

"We may have seen the last of the starship or it might turn up here again tomorrow," said Dr. Claire. "I only wish that the aliens aboard had approached us. I want to know what was in that black box.

"I want to hear them tell us why they were here."

A WINNER! NEWS READER NAMES NESSIE'S BABY!

THANKS to public appeal, Nessie and her offspring are free to roam.

By KIM QUINLAN / Special correspondent

Scientists nicknamed the Loch Ness monster's baby Little Lucky after it was born on March 21 but the creature now has a REAL name thanks to Tina Ivey, who beat out over 65,000 competitors to win our fabulous Name Nessie's Baby contest!

The Alexandria, Va., woman's winning entry, Dino-mite, was also submitted by 38 other readers but she was awarded the $100 grand prize after judges drew her name out of a hat.

TINA IVEY was thrilled to be part of the Name Nessie's Baby contest.

"The Weekly World News is the greatest," Mrs. Ivey said when told that she had won the contest.

"I really feel like I've got a stake in the baby's future now that I've named her. And I don't mind telling you that the $100 will come in handy too. I've got a son in college — as every dollar helps."

Dino-mite is the $100 name!

NEWS editors decided to sponsor the contest after the Loch Ness monster, who was captured by an international team of scientists late last year, gave birth to a 1,000-pound baby monster just hours after she was freed from a massive net on March 21.

As we reported at the time, the experts had planned to kill the creatures but bowed to public pressure and released them before they came to any harm.

They subsequently dashed reports that the monsters had been tagged with electronic tracking devices and vowed never to bother them again.

Bizarre disease makes her flesh drip like hot candle wax

MELTING WOMAN TO WED!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Correspondent

Grotesque Chandra Patel is so ugly children run from her in terror — because her flesh is melting like hot wax right off her head!

But the Indian woman's horrifying condition hasn't kept her from leading a normal life, thanks to the love and devotion of her husband-to-be, Rabindrah Singh.

Incredibly, the 49-year-old Singh met with ailing Chandra last August after reading about her in a newspaper from her hometown of Maharashtra, India. The tortured tailor went to see Chandra, 36, who suffers from a rare disease that turns her flesh soft and mushy. He was so impressed by her courage that he fell in love with her and has been seeing her steadily ever since.

"My life has changed so completely since Rabindrah came that I feel like a totally different person," says Chandra, who has been told by doctors that she has only a few years to live. "My disease has stopped progressing and I feel better than I have in a long time.

'She is the woman of my dreams,' says hubby-to-be

"I can't believe that anyone can see beyond my condition and love the person inside me, but I'm convinced Rabindrah does. I think God sent him to me as a reward to make up for all my suffering."

Chandra was first featured in the pages of The Weekly World News in October, 1988, after news of her bizarre disease made headlines in India.

At that time doctors — who admit they cannot explain her condition — predicted she would not live very long. The woman's flesh had melted and drooped off the right side of her face, and her arms looked like a ghastly blob of misshapen dough.

"The woman began to melt in 1986 and she looks like death warmed over," said her doctor, dermatologist Thakur Ghosh.

"She's young, but she looks like an old woman.

"She has lost sight in one eye, but over the last six months the progress of the disease has slowed. We suspect we're dealing with some kind of virus, but we haven't been able to isolate it. And after all these years of treating her, we are still no closer to a cure — or even an adequate treatment — of her condition."

Chandra and her sweetheart have announced plans to marry next month and the happy husband-to-be says he'll be delighted to exhibit his bizarre-looking bride for the rest of his life.

"I have met many wonderful women, but this one is special," he said. "She is the woman of my dreams."

DOCTORS can't stop the disfiguring condition that makes Chandra Patel's skin drip from her bones — but the courageous woman has now found love. "God sent him to me as a reward to make up for all my suffering," she says.

Hair with skull attached found in parking lot

Officials are stumped over a bizarre discovery at a Utah truck company parking lot — a hank of hair with a piece of skull still attached!

The 8-inch-long piece of brown and gray hair was found near a bloody stain next to heavy equipment parked at the Christensen Brothers' Trucking Company lot in Palmyra.

Sheriff's deputies are suspicious because the lot is near a railroad track. "We don't know if a transient was murdered here, or just what we've got," said Sgt. Jim Tracy.

He's hoping tests of the bizarre find will turn up additional

By JACK ALEXANDER

Shocked cops could hardly believe their eyes when Chris Ayres whizzed by their cruiser doing 70 m.p.h. — on a bicycle.

Cheyenne Brando links Marlon to murder!

'MY DAD IS THE REAL-LIFE GODFATHER'

Cheyenne Brando amazingly accuses her father Marlon of the bloody murder of her mother, Dag Drollet, two years ago

"If you want to meet the real Godfather, then meet my father," Cheyenne said from her Tahiti home. Brando has given an attorney power to act on his daughter's behalf. Cheyenne has said that he ordered his son Christian to kill Drollet, she said.

"When we talked about the killing later, our father had tears in his eyes but behind them his eyes were laughing," she said.

Christian was sentenced to 10 years in prison and both Cheyenne and her brother's fiancée, Eleanor Brando for making his son do his dirty work.

Dealing not standing by Tahitian authorities who originally suspected the case, Judge Max Teriitu asked Cheyenne: "The person placed in court before us by the film portrays the executioner of his enemies. Each of his friends and family die if they cross him. Is that what you are hinting an allusion to?"

"Yes," she said.

Authorities want to question the prime time theatrics of Marlon as Vito Corleone, but he flatly refuses to come to the island.

Brando had no comment about the accusations other than saying, "If I go to Tahiti, that judge is going to arrest me."

THE BETTER YOU LOOK THE MORE FOLKS LISTEN!

The more attractive you make yourself, the more likely it is that people will remember what you say.

In a recent study researchers made three separate videotapes of a scene in which a woman said the exact same things each time — but she was made up to look either attractive, average or unattractive.

"The attractive woman had her hair [illegible] and was wearing makeup," said psychologist Dr. Lynn Carol Miller. "Then the same woman was made up to look average. Her hair wasn't fluffed out and she wore only a little bit of lipstick. Finally she was made to look unattractive. We used makeup to give her shadows under her eyes and put some spots on her face that looked like blemishes. Her hair was greasy and pulled back."

The videotapes were seen by three different groups of 70 students each, and Dr. Miller, who helped conduct the study with researcher Deborah Hugo, in the tape, the woman was conversing with two other women at a class reunion — talking about her social life, her school life and her job.

The students were then tested on what the woman said — and those who saw her at her best remembered what she said.

"These results indicate that how attractive you are has a definite effect on whether people remember what you say."

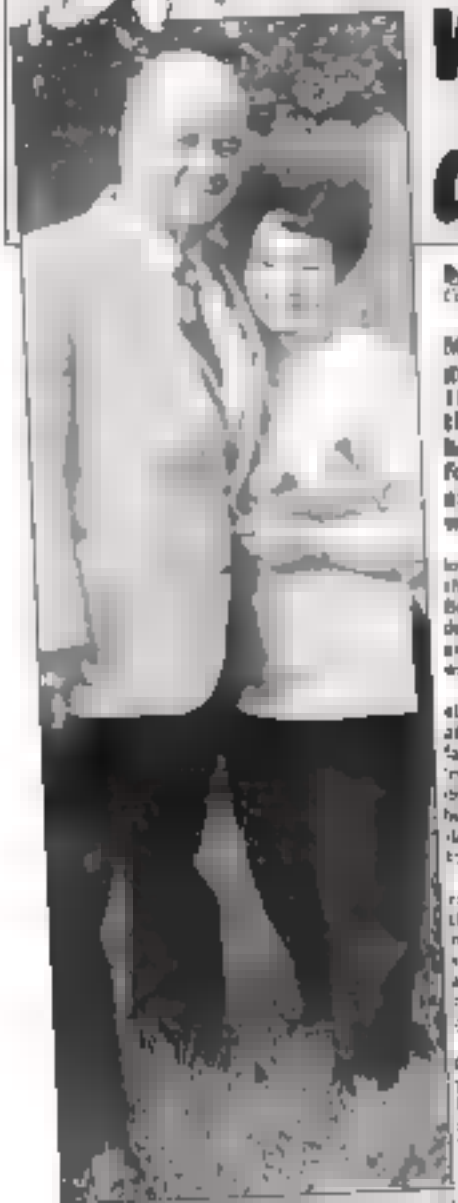
THE SUMMER OF '44

Young lovers finally wed — 48 years after their first date!

MEMORIES Howard and Sarah in the summer of 1944.



By MICKEY McGUIRE
Staff Photographer

Howard Long and Sarah Miller had their first date together on New Year's Eve 1943. That same summer they parted and almost a half-century would pass before they'd meet again — and become husband and wife!

"That first date seems like a long, long time ago," said Howard, back then a hotel night clerk in South Bend, Ind. and today at 76 a retired developer in Indianapolis. "It's really amazing how some things have a way of working out.

"The strange thing is that I never stopped thinking about Sarah, even after I married and was raising a family. The fact is, I think I fell in love with her on that first date. I just didn't want to accept it. All I wanted back then was to make my own way in my own thing. I just wasn't ready to settle down then.

"But last month, when I saw Sarah again, the feelings — all the love that I had kept buried for those many years — just rushed to the surface. I made up my mind then and there that I wasn't going to get her out of my life again. And, by golly, I didn't. I married her."

Howard was 23 and just back from the war in Europe when his younger sister Barbara introduced him to Sarah, then a beautiful but shy 19 year old medical technician. They dated for about a year, but their relationship was more like brother and sister, rather than boyfriend and girlfriend.

HOWARD LONG was home from the war in 1944 when he met Sarah Miller, above. They went their separate ways for nearly 50 years. Right, the couple, after their second wedding.

World War 2 romance has a happy ending

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't want to hold my hand during that entire year," 66 year old Sarah recalled. "It had always been real affection for me. Things might have been different. You see, I was deeply in love with him.

"The next day he told me he was leaving South Bend to 'Seek My Fortune,' he said. I cried for days after he left, but of course I got over it. A few years later I married. I learned from Howard's sister that he had married and was living in Indianapolis. We each had our families and lived our separate lives, though I never really stopped loving him."

Howard and Sarah's paths didn't cross again until last Christmas Eve, when he went back to South Bend to visit his sister and her family.

"My sister always liked to play matchmaker, so, without telling him, she invited Sarah. And darned if she didn't wind up together at the table.

"Well, we got to talking and we learned that both of us had lost our mates and that our kids were grown and on their own. I swear, the longer I sat with her, the more beautiful she became.

"Suddenly I reached over and did what I should have done 44 years ago. I took her hand in mine. She looked at me and I looked at her. I think we both knew that we would never say goodbye again."

Howard and Sarah were married a month ago in a small chapel in Indianapolis, with their children and grandchildren in attendance.

FIVE EASY WAYS TO BECOME MORE CREATIVE!

You can become a more creative person with five easy tips from an expert.

"Becoming a more creative person can help you be more interesting and happy," declared Dr. Tom Greening.

"Most people tend to think of creativity in terms of artistic activities, such as painting, drawing, writing or singing. But being creative is something we can do every-day in the way we live our lives."

Here are his tips on how you can be more creative:

1. Play "what if." Imagine yourself in certain situations and how you'd deal with them. Then analyze your fantasy to see if you can apply any of your imaginary actions to real life.

For example, if you're shy at parties, imagine yourself at a party talking to people, being witty and just having a wonderful time. As you analyze your "what if" party, ask yourself if there's anything you did there that you can do in real life.

2. Spend some time with people who think differently than you do. It might teach you something new. If you're a stable married woman, for example, consider talking to a single woman who's very involved with her career. You may learn something about the way other people live that you can apply to your own life.

3. Make a small change in your life style. If you usually eat the same foods, for example, try a new dish. It can help you grow and expand your life to new horizons.

4. Take a course or read a book ... stretch your mind in some way.

You'll begin to see the world from a new perspective and will realize there are many different ways to do things.

5. Volunteer for a cause you believe in. By getting involved with something outside yourself, you'll be stimulating your creative ability.

You'll also have a chance to meet new people. You'll become a more creative, happy person.

Recent Clinical Studies Indicate....

YOU CAN LOSE TWICE AS FAST

Are you tired of trying one diet after the [illegible] plus more? Are you ready to get off the [illegible] new system that allows you to do just that.

WHY MOST DIETS DON'T WORK

When you radically reduce your food intake, your body does more than just lose weight and fat during the first week or so until the body's so-called "starvation response" kicks in. This starvation response, nature's protection against starvation, slows the metabolism and reduces the burning of calories. This is why you feel fatigued and why the weight loss slows and then stops. The worst part is that when you go off the diet and begin eating normally your body continues for awhile in its "energy saving mode" and you can actually gain back more than you lost! Many people find that they seem to wind up heavier at the end of each of these cycles.

HOW THE FORMULA 19™ SYSTEM WORKS

The Formula 19™ System doesn't require you to count calories or to reduce your food intake. You just take one capsule of The Formula 19™ Weight Loss Enhancer before each meal and replace certain high calorie foods in your diet with delicious, healthful, substitutes. For example, we will ask you to eat broiled or baked chicken instead of fried chicken, baked or mashed potatoes instead of fried potatoes, low fat milk instead of whole milk, etc.

That's it. You'll feel better and be healthier! Less dietary fat means less body fat and lower cholesterol and triglycerides.

And you don't have to worry about dangerous chemicals or stimulants because Formula 19™ has none! Formula 19™ is a healthful fruit-fiber natural formula.

OUR GUARANTEE

If you are not 100% satisfied with your weight loss, simply return the empty container within 30 days for a prompt refund (excluding postage and handling).

[illegible] physicians, some medical specialty of weight control, have conducted independent clinical studies of Formula 19™. In the studies, involving 50 subjects, those who took Formula 19™ lost weight 2 times faster than those who did not. Here is what one of the doctors had to say:

WILL FORMULA 19™ ALONE CAUSE WEIGHT LOSS?

In clinical studies of people on identical diets, those who took Formula 19™ lost weight significantly faster than those who did not. The only researchers have theorized that one naturally occurring compound in Formula 19™ totally, by lipogenesis (formation of fat), however in order to obtain the optimum results promised here you must follow the entire Formula 19™ System which includes taking Formula 19™ Weight Loss enhancer and using our "Smart Choice" eating plan wherein you replace certain high-fat foods with delicious, similar foods that have a lower fat content.

'I'm going hunting for WHALE!'

LET'S hope foreign fishermen will save enough whales for true hunters, says Ed

I'm madder than Daniel Boone with a rusty musket over a letter I just got from my local hunting and fishing club inviting me on a whale hunt.

The letter says that this will be one of the last great whale hunts because we're running out of whales. Seems those sneaky Japs have been potting 'em like shrimp, for Pete's sake! Now outdoorsmen like me have got to go bag a big 'un before they're all gone.

I've got everything from mammoths to Brazilian monkeys mounted on my den wall and some whale jaws would look just great. So I'm going to one of these fellers. But I'm still peg-biting mad that I have countries who eat the damn' things are to blame for the shortage, if you ask me. Not that any civilized human being would even consider taking a bite of whale meat, by the way. But the Japs and Swedes and people like that will eat anything, that's for sure.

And with these greedy pirates prowling the open sea, it's going to be hell to find enough whales for all us guys on the trip. Nearly 50 have signed up as of today and that's a lot of whales, folks.

Now I know all those bleeding heart environmentalists out there will pitch a binge fit after reading this column. But whales are not endangered species. They're just another fish, for crying out loud. Just bigger, that's all. My idiot daughter-in-law Candy is always blubbering about whales being mammals just like humans but anybody who's ever seen one knows they're a fish, plain and simple.

If it swims in the ocean and can stay under water for more than five minutes at a time, it's a fish, by gum.

I mean a whale's not a buck-ova lot different than a 10-ton flounder, if you think about it.

And whale hunting is not for gals or the faint-hearted, either.

That late, great whale fisherman Captain Ahab lost a leg and my little grandson Teddy is watching plenty on TV. I'll be able to tell him about how I bagged one of those big boys back when men were still men.

FARMER COOKS HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW — TO CURE HER ARTHRITIS!

This witch doctor told him to do it!

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

A wacky witch doctor told Lewis Lijima the only way to cure his mother-in-law's arthritis was to cook it out of her, so the pea-brained pig farmer tossed the ailing lady into an enormous stewpot — and boiled her alive!

Witnesses say diabolical witch doctor Duchaine Dzoma danced and chanted around the fire as screaming Cece Kasamba cooked like a crab in 134 gallons of boiling water.

Cops in the African nation of Zambia have since ordered the struggle-stricken quack to stand trial for murder in the grisly killing.

"It's outrageous for anybody to have to die in such a senseless, horrifying manner," said dumbfounded police detective Frankie Dzvanchemende. "We can no longer allow these illiterate witch doctors to engage in such death-dealing practices without regard to the law or old-fashioned common sense."

And flabbergasted Frankie charges against the victim's screwball son-in-law.

"The man says he feels terrible about what has happened, but if cooking was a crime he would be guilty as the first degree," said the disgusted detective.

The hair-raising tale began three months ago when lousy lumbago Lewis decided to get medical attention for Cece, 64, who lived with him, his wife and their three children in a remote country out-side Ndola.

"There were so many legitimate doctors he could have chosen, but for whatever reason he turned to Duchaine Dzoma, a notorious charlatan who professes to cure patients through his hocus pocus," said prosecutor Kamani Mijiras-ka.

"Dzoma told him to build a big fire behind his house and heat a giant kettle of water over it. He was supposed to or-in-law into the kettle and heat the water to boiling — and that was going to cook away the old lady's arthritis.

"And Lewis fell for the crazy scheme."

Two days later, the fathead farmer hauled his kettle of water and tossed an unsuspecting Cece in it as the wicked witch doctor stood by, supervising the whole sordid affair.

"I threw her in the water and as it got hotter and hotter, I could hear her screaming louder and louder and thrashing around like crazy," lunatic Lewis later told reporters.

"I felt very bad to make her suffer like that, but the doctor said it was for her own good and she would feel much better when it was all over. He danced and sang, and he told me he was invoking the power of the gods to help make her well.

"But after the water started to boil, I looked in the pot and I could tell right away something was wrong. I asked the doctor, 'What have you done to poor Cece?'

"And all he said was, 'Sometimes things don't go as we would hope.' And then he packed up his gear and went home."

NICOTINE NIGHTMARE!

Man overdoses on stop-smoking patches!

By KELVIN CRANE/Special correspondent

Nasser Ansari quit smoking when a doctor told him to kick the habit or die but he crushed anyway — as an overdose of nicotine from the stop-smoking patches he stupidly plastered from head to toe!

Directions on the package clearly warned against using more than one patch at a time. But the 58-year old construction worker didn't bother to read them, his grieving wife said.

"I tried to tell him but he wouldn't listen," Nasra Ansari told newsmen in Ajmer India. "The box had something like 30 nicotine patches in it and he put on every one.

"A few minutes later he seemed to get very nervous and started twitching like a poisoned dog. The last thing he did was clutch his chest and groan."

The mind-numbing, stop-smoking drama unfolded after Ansari went to a doctor for a routine checkup and learned that he had several pre-cancerous spots on his lungs.

The physician reportedly told him it was imperative he stop smoking right away. To help him through withdrawals, the doctor prescribed patches that deliver nicotine through the skin and make it easier to quit smoking.

Mrs. Ansari said her husband bought a box of the patches and somehow got the idea they were to be applied all at once and proceeded to plaster them on his legs, stomach, arms and head.

In large doses nicotine is a deadly poison. And within minutes, Ansari suffered cardiac arrest and died.

"Nicotine patches are perfectly safe and extremely effective when used as directed but this man paid no attention to the instructions," said Dr. Tushar Vat, who diagnosed Ansari and prescribed the Chinese-made patches.

"We doctors can do a lot of things for people," he added. "But overcoming the stupidity of our patients isn't one of them."

What you DO and DON'T owe your kids!

Children don't always come first — parents are people, too, and youngsters should realize it. That's the opinion of leading psychiatrist Dr. William Glasser.

"Parents cannot give up their lives for the sake of a child. That won't do the child any good and it won't do the parent any good," he said.

What do parents owe their kids?

- Values — [illegible] need to imitate their parents' [illegible]," Dr. Glasser explained.

"Children who are lied to are going to lie themselves."

- Praise — "Children have a way of living up to what is expected of them."
- Discipline — "Children become fearful when there is no one who appears to be running things."

And what does a parent not owe the children?

- Total attention — "You have a right to have privacy and a life of your own."
- Total responsibility — "You shouldn't blame yourself for the feelings of your kids."
- Individual eating habits — "You don't owe your children meals at any time they choose to eat.

"You do owe it to them to put food on the table. If they don't want to eat it, that's their business."

- Overprotection — "You don't owe them around-the-clock chauffeur service. You can't protect them from the world."
- Money — "You don't owe your children large amounts of monetary support. You don't owe your child a car or anything else that's expensive."

Guess who'll be cellmates at the federal pen?

Mike TYSON and Jim BAKKER

By LEN STEPHENSON

Fallen idols, boxer Mike Tyson and ex-TV evangelist Jim Bakker, will soon be cellmates!

Strings are being pulled so that Tyson — who fears for his life in the back up can serve his time in the less threatening Federal Medical Center in Rochester, Minn. where Bakker is now serving time.

Emotionally shattered over his conviction, a penitent Tyson wants desperately counseling behind bars — and Jim Bakker says he is just the man to do it.

Despite the typical treatment of former church leaders and superstars convicted of TV and other crimes, Bakker is a model prisoner.

And they will be ready to help him, quietly, if all goes according to plan. They believe Bakker can help Tyson as he and Tammy Faye were riding high on TV in the mid-1980s as disgraced boxing champ Tyson was one of their biggest fans.

"Mike has crashed, literally, and he's desperate," said a friend of Bakker who has been part of a support group counseling the former champ.

feel that the former champ's best solution at the moment is to keep him out of the maximum security facilities.

They have been exerting pressure to get him into the Minnesota facility and if all efforts will soon be completed.

"The ideal roommate for Mike would be an evangelical, someone who could counsel him on a daily basis. He has faith in God which is going to get him through this ordeal and that faith needs to be reinforced regularly," said the private friend.

"That's where Jim Bakker comes in. He would be the ideal roommate. Mike has spoken about Bakker and how he used to enjoy watching Jim and Tammy on television.

"Mike needs Bakker's spiritual guidance. And Bakker is hoping for a chance to redeem himself for his own past indiscretions. Mike is that chance.

My crazy grandmother is driving me insane!

Dear Dotti: Please don't think I'm a lunatic when I tell you that my grandmother is ruining my life. She lives next door to me and is always sneaking around looking in my windows to see if I'm doing anything wrong. That wouldn't be so bad if she was sane, Dotti, but she's crazy as a loon.

I don't smoke, drink or do drugs, but she gets on the telephone and tells all our relatives that I throw wild parties and have sex orgies and ought to be thrown in jail for good. This is ruining all my family relations. What can I do? — Fed Up in Minneapolis

Dear Fed Up: The only time I see a guy can do one of two things. Circle your house with razor wire — or buy a bad dog!

People treat me like dirt because I'm such a wimp!

Dear Dotti: I'm a wimp. People run all over me and treat me like dirt because they know I'm the kind of person who would give them the shirt off my back. I've been reading your tough, no-nonsense advice for several years now and really like what you have to say. The bottom line? How can I be more like you? — Wimp in L.A.

Dear Wimp: Keep reading my columns and look for ways to put my advice to work in every area of your life. Sooner or later you'll be long of the kill like I am and no one will take advantage of you again!

I work with a big fat whiner and she won't wear a bra!

Dear Dotti: I work with a 300-pound woman who absolutely refuses to wear a bra. It's a valid sight, Dotti, and even though her enormous breasts often scare customers out of the store, the boss won't utter word. Should I risk my job and say something? If not, what can I do? — Disgusted in Michigan

Dear Disgusted: If I were you I'd pay a friend to sneak into your store like a regular customer and shriek: "Oh my God — a pair of overblown balloons escaped on that woman's chest!" That'll scare the shit out of her — I personally guarantee it!

Hey Dotti, how can I date the gal of my dreams?

Dear Dotti: I want to ask this girl out but I don't know what to say to her and I'm afraid that she'll turn me down. I really like her, Dotti. Can you help? — Desperate in Florida

Dear Desperate: Buy that pretty little girl some candy and a bouquet of flowers, kid. After that, if she's like every other woman on Earth, she'll do anything that you say!

My buddy's a mooch and I want him out of my house!

Dear Dotti: I'm so mad I could spit! It all started when an old pal showed up on my doorstep and said he was down on his luck. I'm a big sucker so I offered to let him stay with me for a few days while he tried to get back on his feet. But now six months later, he's still in my house — eating all my food and refusing to help with the bills. I want to toss him out but I don't know how. What should I do? — Fed Up in Mansfield

Dear Fed Up: Throw the bum's clothes in the middle of the street if he still refuses to leave call the cops — and charge him with trespassing!

Confidential

Dear Curious in Morrisville: I don't care what your boyfriend says — real men DON'T wear brassieres!

Dear Worried in Camden: If the boys nicknamed me "Bowhead" I'd be worried too!

Dear Negligee in Nebraska: I don't know what you're whining about — a lot of 12-year-old girls spend hours!

Dear Neglected Son in Saskatoon: Sorry about that. I meant to send you a picture of me in mothball!

Dear Furious in Rio: I didn't say doctors are know-nothings — I said some are! Sorry!

Dear Frantic Mom in Nebraska: If your goldfish won't eat hamburger, the least he can do is float on private!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is, just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Ask Serena

Will I ever see my runaway daughter again?

Dear Serena: My daughter ran away from home 14 years ago and I haven't seen or heard from her since. Can you tell me if she's okay? Will I ever see her again? — Sad in Newberg

Dear Sad: Your daughter is alive and well and living in Hollywood. You'll see her later this year — in her first big movie!

Dear Serena: I've had a pain in my head for weeks now and it's literally tearing me apart. I'm afraid to go to a doctor for fear he'll tell me I have a brain tumor. Please tell me I'm all right. — Petrified in Columbus

Dear Petrified: For from suffering from a brain tumor, you're probably well in remembrance since I was [illegible] I can't afford it. Advice? — B.B. in Sarasota

Dear B.B: There are numerous books on self-hypnosis in your local library. Pick the one that you like best — and repress yourself!

I DIED & WEN HEAVEN — A THEN CAME B

By SUSAN JIMISON
staff writer

Grandmom Mary Alice Roberts died, went to heaven and returned to life to tell about it — not once, but three different times!

And now the 65 year old Palmerton, Pa., woman says she's lost all fear of death because the heavenly meadow she visited when her heart stopped is the most beautiful place she's ever seen.

"I saw [grandson] I saw my mother and father," says Mary Alice, whose doctors pronounced clinically dead three times as a result of chronic heart problems.

"There was a beautiful bright light like nothing I have ever seen on Earth. I knew that being was God. God is the light.

"At times like these God holds you in His hands. He either keeps you with Him or He sends you back to Earth. He said to me, 'You must go back, my child.'"

Mary Alice's first visit to the afterlife took place 11 years ago while the ailing woman was undergoing heart catheterization at a local hospital.

Suddenly, something went wrong with the procedure and the patient's heart stopped. Mary Alice says her soul soared from her body in those moments and floated to a lush meadow where beautiful purple flowers basked in warm radiant light. A stream bubbled nearby, wandering among gorgeous trees and bright green grass.

A large glowing light appeared to Mary Alice and a feeling of total peace washed over her — but it was not to last. Seconds later, the woman was back on the operating table, where doctors had restored Mary Alice recalled, describing her heart attack that year. "I was revived on the ambulance room, but I didn't need the doctor to tell me I'd been clinically dead. I'd been back to the meadow.

"It was exactly the same purple I'd visited six years earlier and once again I had an irresistible desire to stay there forever. 'Why did you bring me back here?' I asked the doctor when I came to. Yet I felt strangely comforted — I no longer feared death."

'There was a beautiful bright light, like nothing I have ever seen on Earth'

Mary Alice's third visit to heaven happened in 1988 when she underwent a quadruple heart bypass and died on the operating table.

Again she went to the beautiful meadow and again she saw the lovely light. This time, her dead parents came to meet her.

"They were bathed in bright light and they were smiling," Mary Alice remembers.

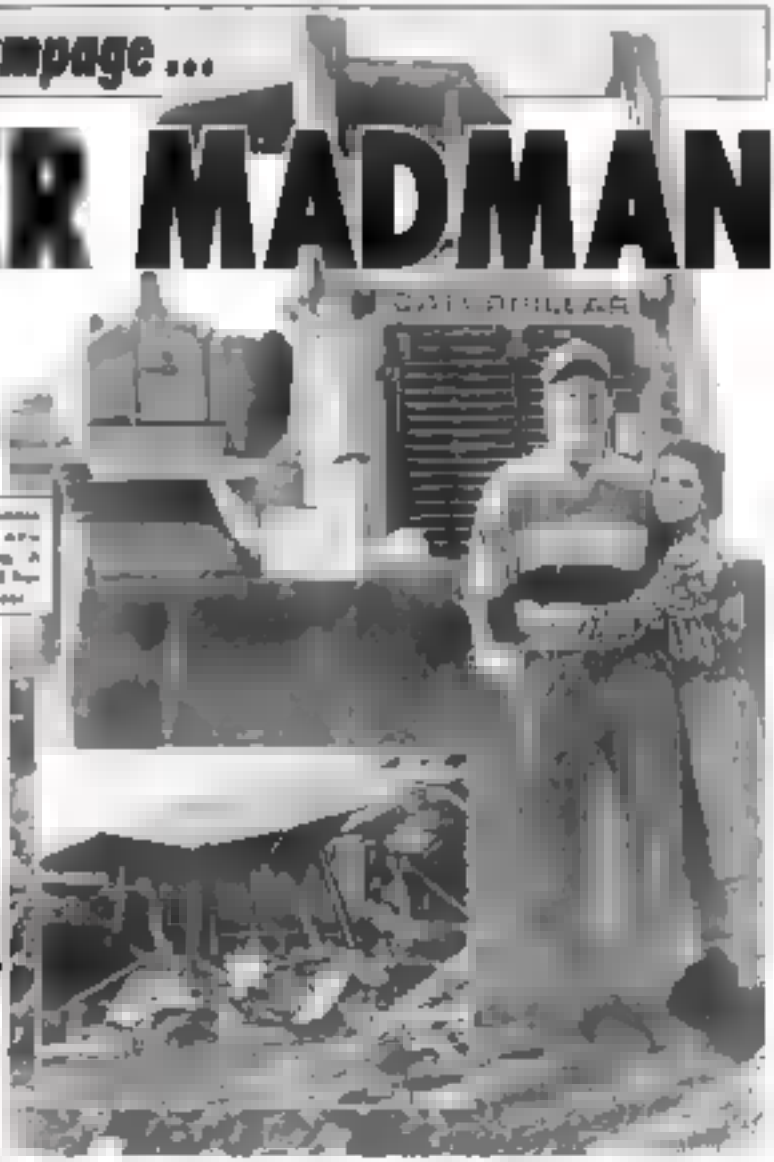
BULLDOZER MADMAN WEDS GAL WHOSE HOUSE HE WRECKED!



ALL in forgiven. Annie Workman gives Bubba a hug. A year ago he invaded her home with a bulldozer.

Hotheaded Bubba Workman has married his sweetie a year after he caught her in the arms of another guy and went on a $1 million rampage, bulldozing her home and turning most of a city block into rubble.

Berserk Bubba, 25, smashed everything in sight with the heavy dozer until several cops yanked him to the ground as he was about to reduce a drugstore to a pile of scrap.

"Seven months on probation has made me change my ways. I've grown up in the last year," said Bubba, who married Annie at a church in a suburb of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Bubba was working on a construction project near Chattanooga last year when he saw Annie ride by in a car with another guy. "I saw red. I was like a wild man... out of control," he said.

"I sneaked back to the construction site after dark, climbed aboard the dozer and headed for Annie's neighborhood. I crunched two parked cars and a mini-van before ramming the front porch and living room of the house she lived in with her parents," Bubba said.

Four more houses, a shoe shop and two more cars were knocked down by the rampaging dozer before Bubba was stopped by the police.

"People were screaming and running from their houses before the roof caved in," said one cop. "The whole neighborhood looked like a war zone."

and residency but was placed on probation and will have to pay for the damage he caused — even if it takes the rest of his life.

"I blame myself for what happened," Annie said. "I went for a ride with the other guy just to make Bubba jealous. We drove by where Bubba was working that day just so he'd see us."

Insurance covered much of the damage, but the young couple still have a huge debt to pay.

"I love Bubba. I always have," Annie said.

"We made up less than a week after his demolition derby. We're both going to work and pay off the debt before we have a baby."

Bubba said he's grown up a lot since his bulldozing days.

"I'm still jealous when I see another man look at Annie in a certain way, but I've got myself under control," he said. "I can't afford not to be."

Hospital patient goes for tea — and loses her bed

Belinda Moore went to get a cup of tea while she was staying in a hospital — and her bed was given to another patient!

The 15-year-old food poisoning patient came back from the hospital cafeteria in her wheelchair after a half hour and was told to go home in her dressing gown because no other bed was available.

"I was still feeling so awful," said Belinda after the Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital in Loedon, England, kicked her out.

Hospital officials said the hospital was severely crowded and Belinda's bed was needed for an emergency. They told Belinda and her parents that they would investigate the incident if the Moores submitted Chowhound eats 84 hot dogs — in 15 minutes!

Nicholas Wood used to amaze his friends by gobbling as many as 24 rabbits at a sitting but that's nothing compared to the gluttony of super hog Tony Lungo, who could wolf down 84 hot dogs in 15 minutes flat!

These are just two of the all-time top chowhounds who spent their lives proving that an appetite is a terrible thing to waste.

Nicholas Wood made his living staging eating performances at stately English homes in the early 1600s.

To the delight of his audiences, Wood could eat as many as 24 roasted rabbits in a single sitting.

Other times, he'd hungrily devour an entire hog or a whole sheep — leaving only the hide and the bones, according to one stunned eyewitness.

Tara Nail stuffed himself with 76 tortillas to set a world's record in 1976.

Tony Lungo of Bloomfield, N.J., fired down an incredible 84 hot dogs in the record time of 15 minutes.

The all-time pork chop champ had to be Edsel Needles of Detroit, who averaged as many as 104 pork chops daily.

Once, he downed 84 pork chops, 31 blueberry pies and 48 bottles of soda pop — just for lunch!

Sit-ups don't reduce your waistline!

It's a myth that doing sit-ups will reduce your waistline, University of Massachusetts researchers have concluded.

In a study, 13 volunteers performed a series of sit-ups each day for 17 days, working their way up to 225 sit-ups daily.

But at the end of the experiment, researchers found that the volunteers' waistlines were no smaller than when they started.

TWO VILLAGES WIPED OUT BY GIANT KILLER SNAILS!

Special to The Weekly World News

Hundreds of giant snails run on a rampage across West Africa, devouring everything in their path including plants, animals and even men, women and children.

"They surround their helpless prey and close in for the kill. Nothing survives their huge appetite," said Police Inspector Zambou Reita. "I have seen the horror they have left behind."

The ravenous beasts are the size of a small dog, eat about one-fourth of their body weight daily and produce about 1,000 offspring every month. They hunt in packs that often number into the hundreds.

"They wiped out two villages near the towns of Balala and Kolabana, northeast of Freetown," said the inspector.

"We have found only one survivor and half of his right arm has been gnawed off."

The huge slimy snails are almost senseless who sneak up on their unsuspecting victims and catch them off guard.

They are the largest species of the Archacatina marginata, commonly known as the tenacle ray snail.

"They attack like piranhas, leaving nothing but the skeletons of their victims behind," said Inspector Reita, who interviewed the lone survivor of the attack.

KILLER snails are as big as dogs — and hunt in packs!

Hundreds of giant snails run on a rampage across West Africa, devouring everything in their path including plants, animals and even men, women and children.

"They surround their helpless prey and close in for the kill. Nothing survives their huge appetite," said Police Inspector Zambou Reita. "I have seen the horror they have left behind."

The ravenous beasts are the size of a small dog, eat about one-fourth of their body weight daily and produce about 1,000 offspring every month. They hunt in packs that often number into the hundreds.

"They wiped out two villages near the towns of Balala and Kolabana, northeast of Freetown," said the inspector.

"We have found only one survivor and half of his right arm has been gnawed off."

The huge slimy snails are almost senseless who sneak up on their unsuspecting victims and catch them off guard.

They are the largest species of the Archacatina marginata, commonly known as the tenacle ray snail.

"They attack like piranhas, leaving nothing but the skeletons of their victims behind," said Inspector Reita, who interviewed the lone survivor of the attack.

Docs tell shocked wife: Your husband's pregnant!

By ALEX JACKSON

A heartbroken widow didn't know her husband's incredible secret until he died after nine years of marriage — HE actually was a SHE — and four months pregnant.

To say his wife was stunned would be the understatement of the year," said coroner Manuel Ramirez, who inadvertently broke the news to grieving wife Rosa de Hernandez. "I naturally thought she already knew."

Her hubby Gustavo was gunned down by two street punks who tried to rob him on a hunt of the couple's home in [illegible]

Gustavo was a jewelry salesman who met Rosa in [illegible]

"We were both 36 and [illegible] didn't believe the children we had [illegible] Rosa said. It was very incredible but I honestly didn't know he wasn't a real man. The shocked widow admitted that there were times she had been a bit bizarre. "But I never suspected he was a woman, and four months pregnant at that. I am devastated."

Mom freezes son's pet hamster

...because the boy wouldn't come out of the bathroom!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

A lame-brain mother claims she really didn't mean to hurt her son's pet [redacted] Percy when she bounced it off a wall, drenched it in scalding water and then popped it in the freezer — until it froze to death!

And to top off her asinine claim, 34-year-old divorcee Catherine Edwards said it was the only thing that she could think of doing that would force her teenage son to come out of the bathroom!

But her story didn't wash with a judge who fined her $100 plus $30 costs in a court hearing [illegible] charges lodged against her on Tuesday.

Mrs. Edwards threatened to kill poor Percy when her son, Garth, refused to come out of the bathroom in [illegible] over a debt he owed [illegible]

When he still [illegible] she hurled the hamster against the wall, dunked him under cold [illegible] and popped him in [redacted] freezer for 10 minutes.

"I didn't intend to do Percy any harm," was the mother's incredible statement to the court.

"I had a big shock when I opened the freezer and found him dead."

Testifying at her hearing, a veterinarian said Percy's [illegible] was an act of "particularly unpleasant cruelty."

Mrs. Edwards said she hasn't seen her son since he left home the day after Percy's death.

Top career women were tomboys!

There are more tomboys among women in the top professions than traditional feminine females, a fascinating new study shows.

According to psychologist Elizabeth Metzler Brennan, tomboys are far more likely to grow up to be high-powered professional women with independent attitudes.

"Those who started out thinking it was okay to play with more masculine toys and games just had a better chance of continuing on that path, remaining more assertive into adulthood," she concluded after studying 185 middle-class American women.

"That seems to come easier if it happens early."

Metzler-Brennan surveyed 47 businesswomen and 41 graduate school women aged 24 to 40 about their goals and activities in elementary school, high school and college.

Here are some of the startling findings of her study:

● By early grade school, women who grew up to be businesswomen, teachers and nurses had more feminine career goals than those who ended up in traditionally male jobs.

● Tomboys may be tough and tumble kids when they're small, but they grow up to be just as feminine as the sugar-and-spice females when they're adults.

● Girls who liked boys' games when they were children maintained their interest in them when they were adults.

The psychologist discussed her findings at a meeting of the Association for Women in Psychology.

Metzler-Brennan said that [illegible] women [illegible] their lives. First graders [illegible] wanted to become scientists or have their own businesses [illegible] by their mid-30s.

How you drive reveals your personality!

The way you drive tells a lot about you, says an expert.

"We control our cars in very much the same way we control ourselves," said psychologist Elayne Kahn, coauthor of the book Why

What You Reveal Your Personality By

Here are several types of drivers, and some personality traits of each.

The Tailgater — "You're a very ambitious individual, and if there's something blocking your way in life you'll be very persistent and keep on trying to overcome it until you succeed," said Dr. Kahn.

Road Hog — You refuse to give way to others. You don't like to take chances and you resent others who do. You're the kind of person who does things by the book. But you're the first to help in a crisis.

Heavy Hanker — If you ease in the horn a lot, you're outspoken and say what you think — and people appreciate your honesty. You're the life of the party and people love having you around. You like to play and you can take it too.

Slow Driver — If you drive below the speed limit, you have a loving nature and are sensitive to others less fortunate than you are. You are charitable and make a great parent.

Fast Driver — You are aggressive and won't be put-trolled by anyone," said Dr. Kahn. "You are creative individuals and the person that everyone relies on when there's an impossible task."

Frequent Passer — You are competitive daring and believe in taking chances. You become impatient with others who are slower than you, but you can cut through red tape with ease and have leadership qualities. People look up to you.

Having lots of money, happiness will be at your hands. Thousands of dollars have been won in the lottery, Lotto, Casinos, Bingo, Horse Racing, and Gambling. From now on you will win . . . win . . . win in everything. You will also be successful in work, and, in love.

World's first all-nude funeral!

Everyone's in their birthday suits — even the preacher!

Free-spirited salesman Holton Davis was a fresh-air freak who spent his spare time frolicking with friends at his favorite nudist camp. And when happy-go-lucky Holton died, his funeral was crammed with mourners — all naked as the day they were born!

But to Cindy's surprise, scores of mourners showed up for the world's first all-nude funeral — including quite a few who had never doffed their duds in public before.

"To tell you the truth, I was scared to death and almost didn't go," said one of Holton's best friends from the furniture store. "But as soon as I'm assumed to take off my clothes around my wife friend of the boss.

"But I got there and it wasn't nearly as bad as I thought it would be.

"It wasn't like an orgy or anything. I'd ever been to. That's for sure. But when I looked around that room I realized I had no reason to be embarrassed ... course I certainly wasn't. The only one who looked silly hanging out in a church with my bare butt showing."

Are you descended from a space alien?

Space aliens interbred with our ancestors more than 3,000 years ago and their extraterrestrial features are still evident in humans today.

By SHERRY MOORE
Correspondent

That's the mind-blowing claim of anthropologist Henri Noblet, who has developed a guide to identify people who bear the strongest resemblance to our alien forebearers.

"Many of us have been influenced by the alien gene pool, some more than others," Dr. Noblet told reporters in Paris.

"In fact there are people who are better than 50 percent alien living among us right now. Eye color, hair, even muscle tone, even the way they sleep and think, are dead give-aways to the influence of extraterrestrial ancestry.

"It is a simple matter to identify these people when you know what features to look for."

Noblet's report has been surprisingly well received by most of the human-developed scientists around the world.

plenty of evidence to support the French anthropologist's claims.

"There is little doubt the human mind has changed dramatically in the past 3,000 years," said the expert.

"We also know that the very appearance of humans became much more refined at the approximate National evolution is too slow to have caused such sudden changes.

"It is more likely they were brought about by the introduction of superior characteristics from an extraterrestrial gene pool."

Noblet says the following physical features may indicate a strong extraterrestrial influence in your ancestry.

■ Eye color is usually green or hazel. The eyes are set wide apart in the head.

■ Hair tend to be small and narrow. Toes are apt to be longer than most people feel is shape and set close to the head.

■ Hands and fingers are long and slender. Nails tend to be perfectly formed but fragile.

■ Facial features are usually delicate but sometimes appear to be sharply chiseled. Lips are either fuller than average or unusually thin.

■ Hips are fuller than average in downright wide in women, breasts are small for build.

■ Hair tends to be red or blond, but hair color alone does not prove alien ancestry.

■ Body build is small to average. Bones are usually weak.

Noblet said behavioral aspects are important clues. Descendants of extraterrestrials also tend to be:

■ Dreamers. The aliens who traveled to Earth long ago were almost certainly visionaries and that is reflected in their descendants today.

■ Smart. They have the ability to size up situations quickly. They also are highly adaptable and often change plans at midstream.

Yes—you can succeed in bookkeeping and accounting.

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Special correspondent

Noted Italian psychic Madam Talia said she will sue an Egyptian holy man for every last cent he has — for selling her a crystal ball that doesn't work!

"The crystal ball they made me is a real lemon," she charged. "They should be making doorknobs or fish bowls, but not crystal balls.

"Everything it shows me is the exact opposite of what actually comes to pass. Nothing I tell my clients is correct. I am ruined — a laughingstock.

"I told a junior executive at a film company that he was being considered for promotion and that he would become a vice president just by displaying the drive to get for the job. That's what I saw in my crystal ball.

"Well, he did what I told him to do — and he got fired. Not promoted — FIRED!

"I give people advice on investments and they lose their shirts. I give them betting tips on races and the horses jump in so far behind they need headlights to find the barn.

"One woman said a man she had been dating for three months had asked her to marry him. I told her the crystal ball showed the marriage would be full of bliss.

"Be on my advice, she marries him and finds out five weeks later — after he had robbed her blind — that he has eight other wives scattered all over the country. Now the cops think I'm in cahoots with the rat and she's threatening to sue me."

Madam Talia, who lives in Milan, Italy, but has gone into hiding to avoid confrontations with outraged clients, said she bought the backward ball from a man named Abdul Hamid El Shahid, who claimed it had been "unearthed" centuries ago from the tomb of Queen Nefertara, the chief wife of Pharaoh Ramses II.

"Nefertari my eye!" she bellowed. "I had the crystal tested at a laboratory and it turns out the 'ancient' ball is about two years old. It's a fake. I paid a lot of money — I won't say how much, but a lot of money — for a genuine mystic crystal ball and what I get is something that should have fish swimming around inside it.

"If I ever get my hands on the bearded, cheating little lowlife there won't be any mistake about his future. He's going to die an agonizing death at the hands of an [illegible] me!"

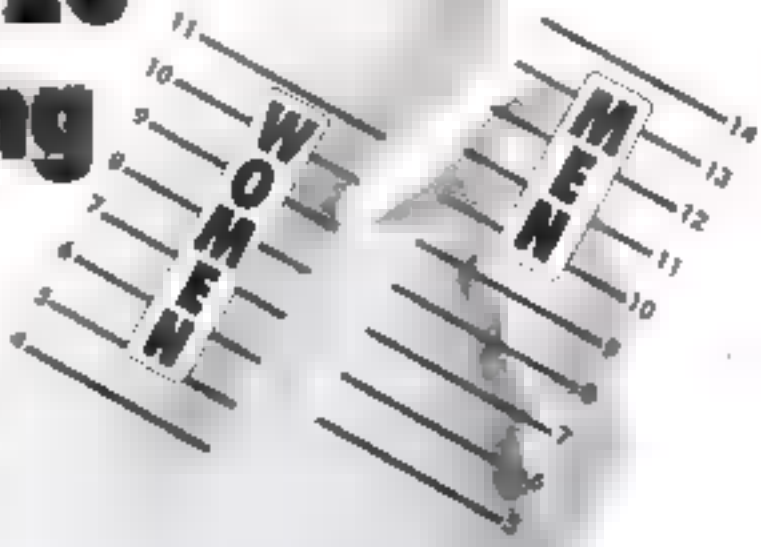
Your shoe size tells how long you'll live!



By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

An explosive new study confirms the mind-boggling findings of a team of Swedish researchers — your shoe size predicts how long you'll live!

A recent survey involving thousands of men and women confirms the astonishing 1987 work of a team of orthopedic doctors in Umea, Sweden.

The first study was reported in Weekly World News readers in April 1987, and sent shock waves through medical circles.

"It's surprising as it seems, foot size does predict your life span," said Dr. Hans Bjork, an epidemiologist from Stockholm who reported on the newest study.

"The original research involved a sample group of 300 men and women. This new study included an even larger group.

"We used computerized data to compare people from every area of Sweden. We studied the age at which they died and the cause of death and found that shoe size was definitely linked to longevity."

While the studies found no direct correlation between shoe size and individual illnesses or between foot width and life span, they both isolated a definite link between shoe size and length of life, Dr. Bjork said.

"People with half sizes fell generally in the longevity ranges provided for the next largest size," Dr. Bjork said.

"We have no doubt people can live longer than their shoe size range would indicate," the researchers wrote in a recent issue of Orthopedic Quarterly.

"But this would be true only if they adopt an unusually healthy lifestyle. With regular attention to diet and exercise."

In both studies the researchers compiled a shoe size table giving life expectancy ranges for men and women in each size. The chart is reproduced here for Weekly World News readers.

New evidence of UFOs confirmed in 64 countries!

By BILL RICHARDS
Correspondent

UFOs have left landing gear imprints, tree damage, radiation, extreme effects on animals and human beings and other physical evidence in 1,015 cases in 64 countries, according to a 10-year study.

"This evidence certainly contradicts the widely held notion that UFO landings rarely occur and that UFOs are merely 'lights in the sky,'" said Ted Phillips, a researcher who conducted the study for the Center for UFO Studies.

In one startling case, several people in Uruguay reported seeing a disk-shaped object land, said Phillips.

A German shepherd got within 30 feet of the object but then the animal remained motionless until the object flared up and disappeared in the sky, leaving behind the imprint of six landing gear and a circular ring-like trace.

"Soil tests at several UFO landing sites indicate that these objects weigh from 8 to 10 tons, and, in some instances, as much as 30 tons," Phillips said.

"I know of UFO cases in which trees up to seven inches in diameter were bowled over or pushed over — yet there were no visible impact marks on the tree itself.

"Occasionally, we get cases in which investigators have used Geiger counters to measure fairly high readings of radiation at these landing sites."

According to the study, nearly half of all sighted UFOs are observed between 8 p.m. and midnight. UFOs emit some sort of sound such as humming in 6.6 percent of the cases.

More than one third — 37 percent — of the reports involve two or more witnesses, including such people as military officers, policemen, priests, engineers, airline pilots and physics professors.

"The scientific community has almost totally ignored the physical trace reports and UFO sightings in general," said Phillips. "Yet, these physical trace cases provide us with the most direct approach to resolving the UFO mystery without question."

Giant cat dumps down on little girl!

Little Katie Letany put her head inside the cage of a lion-tiger hybrid — and wound up with her arm locked in the jaws of the beast.

The cat's owner had to shoot his precious pet to free the Carteti, Ore., child.

Officials say the 11-year-old girl is one of the luckiest people in the world to survive the vicious attack.

She had tried to do the same. The cat attacked her, seizing her arm with its teeth and refusing to let loose.

Katie was rushed to the hospital where she underwent surgery to repair severe damage to her muscles. Doctors expect her to regain use of her arm.

HOT DOG! How you eat a wiener reveals your true personality!

You can tell a lot about a wiener lover's personality — simply by watching the way he eats his hot dog.

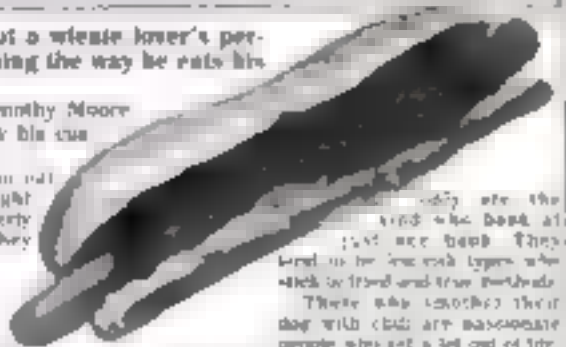
That's the conclusion of Timothy Moore who made a survey of the way his customers eat their hot dogs.

Moore found that people who eat their dogs from one end, straight down to the other end, are orderly folks who usually finish what they start.

Those who start at one end, then stop and start on the other end, tend to be compulsive, inhibited and eager — driven to success. They want to wash the dishes even before they've finished everything on their plates, he said.

Those who munch the top plugs first demand fast fulfillment. They are big on kissing, lots of hugging and long distance telephone conversations.

Dog lovers who eat from the middle out tend to skip details and get right to the bare facts.



Thus, male executive business executives who are interested only in the bottom line.

Moore also found that you can tell a lot about a person by what he puts on his hot dog.

Frank fanciers who slap on mustard and sauerkraut are usually from Brooklyn, where this is the traditional way of serving hot dogs. These people love tradition and have strong family ties.

Every American man should pay a $100 crime tax!

. . . because males are criminals, says expert!

"MOST criminals are men," says psychologist June Stephenson.

By Susan [illegible]

Psychologist June Stephenson has figured out what causes crime in America: Men!

And the California author has come up with a way to pay the $300 billion crime costs the taxpayer. She wants every adult male in the country to pay a special $100 tax to help foot the bill for police, prisons and the overcrowded court system.

"We have a crime wave and we need to identify the problem — which is committing the crimes," says Dr. Stephenson, a married mother of two from Napa, Calif. "Well, about 94 to 96 percent of the criminals are males.

"It's men that are using our criminal justice system, so they should be charged a user fee that would cover the cost of the system. There should be a special tax that all men might pay when they turn in their IRS tax returns. I'm not saying all men are criminals, but most criminals are in fact men. Somebody has to pay for that."

Dr. Stephenson, whose book, Men Are Not Cost Effective, has sold thousands of copies over the past few months, points out that there are 500,000 prisoners across the country each of whom costs the taxpayer as much as $20,000 a year to maintain. And each year, 14,000 more men find their way into America's jails.

She blames male hormones for men's tendency to get in trouble.

"Boys are just geared for action — that's the testosterone," she explains.

"We need to teach them to look for others to be responsible and to care for people smaller and weaker than they are.

"And young boys who come from violent homes should be identified and given help."

The psychologist admits that her appearances around the country giving talks on male violence have been met with mixed reactions.

"Most women think it's a great idea, but I've had men threaten to kill me," she says. "I've had men tell me I'm a bitch and I should go back to the kitchen."

Despite those who would be hurt most by Stephenson's proposals, she insists her book, from Secaucus Publishing Co., [illegible]

MAGICIAN'S TRICK BACKFIRES — AND THREE PEOPLE FLOAT AWAY!

By LAUREL BOWNE / In India

Slaphappy swami Baba Bhanda loved to show off his mystical powers by making faithful followers float magically through the air. But cops ordered hasty Baba to lay off the levitation — after three unsuspecting subjects flew away and never came back!

"From what witnesses tell us, two men and a woman have simply sailed off into the sky and no one has seen them since," dumbfounded police Detective Pawan Das told reporters in Calcutta, India.

"Of course, it's difficult for us to know exactly what is going on because this fellow and his sect are very weird indeed. But we've ordered him to stop levitating people until we can get to the bottom of this entire mess."

The tale of the daffy guru and his high flying disciples came to light two weeks ago when irked off fellow Das stormed into a police station charging that dimwit Baba had made his wife sail away.

"We paid the yogi a visit and he told us it was true. That Mr. Das's wife Durga and two men had soared off and never came back during levitation ceremonies the day before," Detective Das recalled.

"Then we interviewed a few of his followers and they all said the same thing. That these people had just floated up, up, up and away, and nobody had the slightest idea where they went.

"Everyone at the ashram seemed surprised that we would concern ourselves with such a trivial matter. They seemed to think that a few people flying off was no big deal."

Riled-up relatives of Baba's missing followers are demanding cops arrest the hare-brained holy man, but police say they can't find any law against making folks sail out of sight.

"This idiot didn't kill or kidnap anybody, so we don't know if we can charge him with anything or not," Detective Das said with a sigh. "For all we know, the whole thing could be a giant hoax anyway.

"But we instructed him not to go around levitating anybody else until we can look into it a little more."

And that has the beefy Baba blubbering in his beer.

"I am the most respected guru in the world and I have been levitating my subjects for years without a single mishap," the dopey yogi twisted to reporters.

"Then one day something goes haywire and a few people fly away, and all of a sudden the cops start treating me like I'm some kind of criminal.

"I keep telling that detective, I want these people away and I'll bring them back — just as soon as I figure out how to [illegible]

DRUNK BLOWS AWAY ROACH — WITH HIS SHOTGUN!

. . . and [illegible] to jail

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Boozed up N.J. Atkins grabbed his 12-gauge shotgun when he spotted a cockroach in his Canadian motel room and blew the critter away — along with a refrigerator and a wall.

"That room looked like it had been blown up by a bomb. He made wallpaper out of that roach," said a police detective in Owen Sound, Ontario.

Atkins, 48, and a woman friend were in the motel when she saw the roach crawling across the refrigerator door. "Bet you can't kill him with your shotgun," she said.

Atkins was up to the challenge. The 12-gauge shotgun blast not only blew the bug to smithereens but left a giant pair hole in the refrigerator and shattered the wall, cops said.

"Atkins admitted the two of them had been drinking, and when she mentioned that he shoot the roach, he was just drunk enough to try it," said the detective.

A judge sentenced Atkins to 30 days in jail after finding him guilty of mischief. He also was ordered not to have any firearms, ammunition or explosives for five years.

Expert's 10 tips tell you...

By ELEANOR RITZ
Special to The NEWS

You can make your financial dreams come true by following a few simple tips, says an expert.

"In the next year, more Americans are going to become millionaires than ever before," said financial and business expert Dr. Richard Rudnick.

Here are 10 tips from Dr. Rudnick to help you make your financial dreams come true:

● Use your frustration. If you're sick and tired of what you're doing, use that as motivation to get yourself off your duff and try something new.

● Don't worry about a lack of formal education. Many of the big money-makers never went beyond high school.

● Take advantage of free seminars in your field of interest. Listen to motivational tape cassettes.

● Let yourself daydream. Many of the best ideas for businesses and inventions came to people who thought them up when daydreaming.

● Take a never-say-die attitude. If you don't succeed in your first or second venture, realize that every successful person has failed at one time or another.

● Take lower-level positions in businesses you're interested in — you'll learn and make invaluable contacts.

● Read newspaper articles about self-made successes. They're inspiring and full of useful information.

● Associate with enthusiastic people. Optimism and energy are contagious. Don't hang around with downbeaters.

● Buy specialized magazines. You can find one that's narrowed to your field of interest. It's also good to read business magazines.

● Focus your motivation. Cut out newspaper and magazine articles related to your field of interest — or articles on success — and tape them to the wall or refrigerator door. If you're thinking of starting a party-catering business, put up pictures of balloons and fancy food spreads to keep your goal ever present in your mind.

Groom shoots bride at reception, cops say

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

There was no honeymoon for unhappy bride Laurette Brunson, who cops said was shot in the stomach by her hot-tempered hubby after she splattered him with macaroni salad — at their wedding reception.

Laurette, 38, spent her wedding night in a Tampa hospital, only a few miles away from Richard, 38, her husband of a few hours, who was in jail charged with attempted homicide.

"The wedding and reception had gone well until members of the groom's family began taking home some of the food. The bride got mad and threw the macaroni in the groom's face," said Tampa police officer James Scott.

"Witnesses said Brunson mumbled something like, 'I'll show you who's king in this family.' He got a .22-caliber pistol and shot her."

Cops said Brunson shot the bride in the stomach several hours later. Relatives took the wounded bride to the hospital where she was at first listed as critical and upgraded to stable condition 24 hours later.

She was released from the hospital four days later.

Friends and relatives of the newlyweds said there had been no hint of trouble until the bride and groom began arguing over the food, according to police.

Contacted after she was released from the hospital, the bride said she didn't want to

Nazi madman used a time machine to HITLER

By CLAUDE CARRINGTON/ Special to The NEWS

One of the world's leading experts on Nazi Germany says Hitler and his scientists may have mastered time itself, sending an elite corps of "time warriors" centuries into the future to conquer a world that is yet to be!

NOTES on this photo found among secret Nazi files indicate these two soldiers were among thousands sent to the year 2143.

Dr. Kurt Fischer told a symposium in Mysen, Norway that evidence accumulated over the past 47 years has convinced him that the Nazis developed a crude but working time machine before the fall of Germany in 1945.

He says parts of the machine and tattered blueprints were recovered from a bombed-out bunker in Berlin by Allied forces. And he suspects that Hitler might have used the device to propel himself into the future and back on numerous occasions.

"Volumes have been written about the Nazis' heavy water experiments and Hitler's obsession with perfecting the atom bomb," said Dr. Fischer. "But the cutting edge of Nazi technology was concerned with nothing less than the mastery of time and space itself.

"There is evidence to suggest that they did, in fact, open a portal. It couldn't help them after the course of World War II.

"But there is a very real possibility that it gave them a chance to win an even greater victory — the control and domination of our future."

Dr. Fischer's presentation came on the heels of reports that a 183 year-old Hitler had a heart attack and died on April 14 in Buenos Aires (related of us a Berlin bunker under Allied attack at the end of World War II.

The CIA is currently investigating. And if the reports turn out to be accurate, it would go a long way toward confirming Fischer's contention that Hitler used a time machine to shuttle back and forth between the present and future while eluding arrest.

Meanwhile, Fischer provided ample documentation for his broader theories during his presentation in Norway.

DR. FISCHER found evidence that Hitler's scientists had conquered time travel.

In a dramatic videotaped interview, Nazi physicist Erich Kreiner — now 91 and living in Bolivia — confirmed that he was one of 38 scientists who conducted the time-travel experiments.

He refused to name his colleagues and appeared to be addled or intentionally evasive when asked to discuss specifics.

But he did say the Nazi goal was to send 5,000 elite troops to Germany in the year 2143, which was then 200 years into the future.

"There was some measure of success," he said, adding that several technicians were sent decades into the future

Is the Fuhrer alive in the 22nd century?

Reports from Argentina suggest that Adolf Hitler perished on April 21 after spending the past 47 years in hiding. But if Dr. Kurt Fischer's theories are correct the Nazi madman might still be alive — somewhere in the future!

"I know it sounds fantastic but I, for one, wouldn't put anything past the most diabolical genius the world has ever known," said the expert.

"We know that Hitler had a time machine and we know that he was inclined to use it. If he did manage to travel into the future he might very well have gotten access to medical technology to extend his life far beyond the normal span.

"And if that was the case, I would expect him to send a proxy back in time to make us think he had died. I can think of nothing that would serve his purposes better.

"After all, Hitler wanted — or wants — to rule the world. He could accomplish that not interference from his enemies in the past."

As Weekly World News and other major newspapers reported just weeks ago, Argentine officials are claiming that Hitler had a heart attack and died at the age of 183 on April 14.

But no less a figure than President George Bush is said to have sent CIA experts to view the body, check fingerprints and confirm that the elderly Fuhrer — or his look-alike — stretched out on a morgue slab seems to verify the accuracy of those claims.

But no less a figure than President George Bush is said to have sent CIA experts to view the body, check fingerprints and confirm that Adolf Hitler. Both the White House and CIA have clamped an unprecedented shroud of secrecy on their investigations and barring high-level news leaks, it is unlikely that the world will learn the truth anytime soon.
